Johnson Urges Consumer Protection

Democrat Senators Rally; Federal Excise Tax Stays

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Senate gave the administration a clean sweep on all key issues in the $11.6-billion tax-cut bill by refusing Wednesday to repeal excise taxes on jewelry, handbags, cosmetics and furs.

Even on lesser issues, the administration's batting average was high as the Senate drove toward quick passage of this top priority legislation. However, there could be reverses in the final voting or in working out Senate and House differences in a conference committee.

The vote against a Republican effort to repeal the excise taxes was on a 48-45 hairline, with Democratic leaders scrambling for support. Many Democrats held back until the last minute to see if their votes were needed.

Change Votes

Two senators who originally announced "yes" votes, Vance R. Hartke, D-Ind., and Clair Engle, D-Calif., switched to "no" before the voting closed. Several other Democrats who had expressed sympathy for the repeal voted "no" the first time when it became clear their help was needed by the leadership.

Democratic Leader Mike Mansfield of Montana voted against the amendment but after the victory withdrew his vote and paired with absent Senate Republican Leader Everett M. Dirksen. The Illinois senator, in the hospital for treatment of an ulcer condition, has been the major sponsor of the repeal amendment. Mansfield's move enabled him to be listed for the proposal.

GOP Solid

All 31 Republicans present voted for the amendment with help from 14 Democrats. The only Southerner not among the 48 Democrats against it was Sen. Albert Gore of Tennessee.

The three-vote difference was the same margin by which the administration was victorious Tuesday on two other key issues. It beat out then 47-44 an effort to knock out House repeal of the stock dividend credit and defeated 48-45 a move to give special tax deductions to parents with children in college.

Wartime Taxes

The 10 per cent excise taxes at the retail level were imposed in World War II and repeated efforts to repeal them in recent years have failed. It was estimated knocking them out would add $450 million or more to the $11.6-billion tax losses in the bill.

President Johnson's role in the excise tax dispute entered in the sizzling debate just before the vote. Sen. Thruston B. Morton, R-Ky., who introduced the repealer, said the Senate Finance Committee had voted to repeal them on Jan. 23 but "the Texas twist was applied during a luncheon recess and the committee reversed itself 9-8.

Says Public Has Too Little Voice

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Johnson urged Congress to slap new curbs on deceptive packaging and to require disclosure of interest rates on installment purchases.

He also suggested a plan to help city families figure out their budgets.

In a special message Wednesday on consumer problems, Johnson said that "for far too long, the consumer has had too little voice and too little weight in government."

Declaring that the consumer now occupies a back seat, he said: "We cannot rest content until he is in the front row."

The ninth proposal, new with Johnson, would require inspection of all meat and poultry sold in the United States even though it does not cross state lines.

More Administrative

Most of the new ideas advanced by the President would involve administrative rather than congressional action.

And he called upon his new committee on consumer interests "to develop means of keeping the public continuously informed of developments of importance in the consumer field."

The President said that most budget management and consumer publications are aimed at middle-income families.

"Yet it is the poor who suffer most from sharp practices," he said.

Virtually all the legislative proposals in the message were warmed over from past years and many of them were included by the late President John F. Kennedy in his first special message on consumer problems in 1962.

These were the measures Johnson asked Congress to enact:

Simple Packages

—A requirement that packaged products bear simple, direct, visible and accurate statements about their nature and quantity so the housewife can choose among competing items without facing misleading adjectives, confusing fractional variations in weight, and illustrations that bear no relation to the contents of the package.

Saying that "informed judgments are often made difficult or impossible by deceptive or confusing packaging and labeling," Johnson said a shopper "ought to be able to tell at a glance what is in the package, how much of it there is, and how much it costs."

—A requirement that all lenders "disclose to borrowers in advance the actual amount of their commitment and the annual rate of interest they will be required to pay."

—Extension of meat and poultry inspection to products sold within a state as well as interstate.

Curb False Ads

—Authority for the Federal Trade Commission to issue temporary cease-and-desist orders, subject to court review, when it has reason to believe that alleged false advertising or other unfair practices would, if continued, irreparably injure the public.

—End the practice which permits manufacturers to market pesticides "under protest" before the Agriculture Department has certified their safety.

—Require companies issuing over-the-counter stocks to make full disclosure of their financial affairs, as required of firms listed on stock exchanges.

—Extend and clarify present law to require labels for drugs, cosmetics and pressurized containers to warn against accident hazards.

—Grant subpoena powers to the Department of Welfare in connection with hearings under the Food, Drug and Cosmetic Act.

Safe First

—Require that cosmetics be proved safe before marketing and extend federal inspection authority over foods, drugs and cosmetics.

Private School Aid Likened To Cancer

HARRISBURG (AP) — A Johnstown legislator Wednesday branded state aid to private colleges and universities as a "mounting cancer," and promptly was challenged by the head of the University of Pittsburgh to debate the point on television.

The antagonists in this scenario before the joint House-Senate appropriations committees were Rep. Edward D. McNally, D-Cambria, and Chancellor Edward H. Litchfield.

Their exchange climaxed a debate McNally had sparked all day on the advisability of the state continuing its financial assistance to the private schools at the expense of, the legislator claimed, the 14 state-supported colleges.

McNally contended that total state aid to the private colleges —in direct appropriations and General State Authority construction—amounted to $100 million a year.

"I'm against this legalized giveaway," he told Dr. Eric A. Walker, president of the Pennsylvania State University; Dr. Gaylord P. Harnwell, president of the University of Pennsylvania, and Litchfield as they appeared individually before the appropriations body.

"I say to you the end (of this practice) is in sight, although I probably won't see it in my days in the legislature," he declared.

McNally's point was that student costs at the universities were too high for the lower income families, "the ordinary family."

Denying that he was against higher education per se, the Johnstown Democrat argued that more state money should be diverted to create state colleges with their lower costs.

He began his offensive during Walker's appearance and stepped it up when Harnwell came forth.

"I haven't found one reason why we should give you any money," McNally told the Penn president.

"I'm sick and tired of voting money for the carriage trade."

Harnwell refused to be drawn into a debate.

When cNally began to subject Litchfield to the same line of questioning, Litchfield, obviously annoyed, told him:

"You, sir, do not know the facts. The average family income of the Pitt student is $7,500. I would not call that the 'carriage trade.'

"I make this challenge to you. I will personally pay for a half-hour of television time. It can be in Pittsburgh or it can be in your home district of Cambria County, it doesn't matter.

"You take 15 minutes to tell your story. I'll take 15 minutes to tell mine. I'm certain that the people of western Pennsylvania will respond three-to-one in my favor."

"I just might do that," McNally replied.

"I hope you do," Litchfield said.

Scranton Won't Pose With Backers

KANSAS CITY (AP) — Gov. William Scranton of Pennsylvania refused to pose for photographers Wednesday with two Republicans who are trying to promote a movement to draft him for the Republican presidential nomination.

But the governor reiterated his statement that he would consider it his duty to accept a draft for the nomination.

"Yes sir, I would—I've said I would — but those things just don't happen any more," he said. "I'm doing everything I can to discourage it."

The governor was here for an address at the annual convention of the National Association of Soil and Water Conservation districts.

At a reception he declined to pose with Warren J. Sinshiemer, New York lawyer, who is leading a campaign to draft the governor and Stanley Christopher, Missouri GOP committeeman, who heads up a draft-Scranton movement in this state.

"If I were to pose with them," he said, "it would appear that I am endorsing their efforts, and I am not."

Hoffa Ready To Pay Jury, Ex-Associate Tells Court

CHATTANOOGA, Tenn. (AP) —A onetime associate of Teamsters President James R. Hoffa testified Wednesday that Hoffa talked often of trying to fix his 1962 conspiracy trial jury.

Once, the witness said, Hoffa "said he would pay $15,000 to $20,000 to get to the jury."

Edward Grady Partin — local Teamsters business manager in Baton Rouge, La., who is under indictment for stealing union funds—testified over objections of lawyers defending Hoffa and five others on trial with him.

All six are accused of trying to rig the Nashville jury which tried Hoffa on a charge of accepting a million-dollar payoff from a Michigan trucking firm. The 1962 trial ended with a hung jury and a mistrial.

"A hung jury is as good as an acquittal," Partin quoted Hoffa as telling him during the trial. "They'll never try the case again."

Partin, who, defense lawyers agreed, had their unlimited confidence during the 1962 trial, began his testimony Tuesday as a surprise. He testified then he had made almost daily reports during the 1962 trial to Justice Department officials in Nashville.

The defense claimed his testimony would be a violation of privacy and accused the government of planting him in its midst illegally.

U.S. Dist. Judge Frank W. Wilson allowed him to testify after studying the matter overnight.

"I find the government did not place him in the midst of the defense. He was knowingly and voluntarily placed there by one of the defendants," the judge said.

Partin testified Tuesday that Hoffa had invited him to Nashville Oct. 22, 1962—the day his trial began — to discuss union business. Partin said he had had personal and union business dealings with Hoffa several times before.

His testimony Wednesday — the first in the 2½-week-old trial to link Hoffa himself with any alleged jury-tampering attempts — also named four of the other five men on trial with the union leader.

Rights Bill Wins Smashing Victory

WASHINGTON (AP) — The House retained a strong public accommodations section in the civil rights bill Wednesday after beating back a dozen attempts to weaken it.

The final effort by opponents, an attempt to limit sharply the coverage of the provision, was defeated on a standing vote of 153 to 68.

That left nearly intact what Negro leaders regard as the heart of the omnibus civil rights bill and provided the bipartisan coalition supporting it with a smashing victory.

The public accommodations section would bar hotels, motels, restaurants, movies and other places serving the public from discriminating against Negroes.

For nearly three days, Southern opponents battered at it trying to soften its various provisions but the major attack was made by Rep. George Meader, R-Mich., who sought to scrap the entire provision for a much narrower one of his own.

Under Meader's proposal only facilities on, or advertised along, interstate or primary highways would have been covered. He called his proposal "fair, reasonable, workable and as far as the federal government ought to move in this area at this time."

Although the Meader amendment represented the last real attempt by the opposition to amend the section, Southerners kept the debate going for another hour, with bitter remarks about the bill being "steamrollered" through the House.

The House adjourned at 8:05 p.m. and will move on to other sections of the bill Thursday.

LBJ Vows To Finish Kennedy's Battles

NEW YORK (AP)—President Johnson, paying tribute to the memory of John F. Kennedy, said Wednesday night, "We shall finish his fight" against every foe "of the land he loved and the people he served."

Johnson flew to New York for a 29-hour stay that included an appearance at the annual dinner of the Joseph P. Kennedy Jr. Foundation.

In his prepared text for the dinner, Johnson had this to say about his assassinated predecessor and the future of the efforts Kennedy had begun:

"With his memory and spirit to inspire us — with his words and his works to guide us—we shall live up to his trust.

"We shall finish his fight — and we shall conquer mental retardation, and mental illness, and poverty, and every other foe of the land he loved and the people he served."

The Kennedy Foundation devotes itself primarily to the conquest of mental retardation — an affliction visited upon one of the late President's sisters, Rosemary. The foundation was created in memory of John Kennedy's older brother, a bomber pilot killed in Europe during World War II.

Johnson noted that John Kennedy had planned to attend the dinner, originally scheduled for last Dec. 4 but postponed after the Nov. 22 assassination.

"No cause was closer to his heart," the President said.

Johnson declared that millions of people around the world "will reap the harvest of his pioneering work in this field," which he said has been "so greatly misunderstood and neglected so many years." The President continued:

"Humbly I shall carry on for him here, as I intend to carry on the great efforts he started for lasting peace."

Violence During Cyprus Airlift

NICOSIA, Cyprus (AP)—Violence continued in the westernmost part of embattled Cyprus Wednesday while an airlift took American women and children to safety in Beirut, Lebanon, 160 miles away.

Violence in the form of two bombs that ripped the U.S. Embassy in Nicosia Tuesday night and the burning of two American cars started the move to airlift out any U.S. dependents who wanted to go.

JACKSON, Miss. (AP) — Byron De La Beckwith denied Wednesday he was the sniper who ambushed Negro leader Medgar Evers last summer. He claimed a rifle similar to the alleged murder weapon was stolen from him the day before the killing.

The defense rested after Beckwith's surprise appearance on the witness stand.

Closing summations will begin Thursday—the 10th day of the trial.

A jury of 12 white men is sitting in judgment of Beckwith.

'U BUM' Plate Shocks Officials

RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — Authorities at Central Prison were wondering Wednesday how an auto tag bearing the unique identification of "U-BUM" was shipped to western North Carolina.

They also wondered who put the words on one of the 2.9 million license tags and other signs produced by inmates at Central Prison in a year.

The tag was found by Vernon Swafford, operator of a Franklin auto store. He said it was shipped in a box of truck tags.

"I've put it on display out in our window," he said. Swafford wants to keep the plate and has asked for permission.

NEW YORK (AP) — Rallies by tobacco and savings-and-loan issues, along with a wide gyration by Du Pont, added a little zing to the stock market Wednesday—but, once again, it went nowhere.

$62,710 Budget

Stroud Township Hikes Millage

STROUDSBURG — Stroud Twp. Supervisors last night tentatively approved a budget of $62,710 for 1964. The budget will increase the general fund millage one mill, from three to four mills. The sinking fund millage and fire fund remain at one mill each.

Harold Albert, secretary-treasuere of the supervisors, said the increase is due to $5,300 in unpaid bills from 1963, and the increased cost of materials needed to operate the township.

He added, "This is the first increase in millage we have had in the township since 1952, when the millage was increased one mill. In 1957 millage was reduced to seven mills, and after the re-evalution of taxes in the county our millage was reduced to three mills in the general fund, one mill in the fire fund and one mill in the sinking fund."

Albert pointed out that actual expenditures last year were $53,534.63.

Included in the budget, which will be open to public inspection Monday is $2,750 for the purchase of a lot adjoining the present lot on N. Fifth Street.

The lot to be purchased is 100 feet by 162 feet. The 100 feet is road frontage on N. Fifth Street.

The budget showes a total of $60,910 as estimated receipts. This will come from county aid taxes, fees from rental equipment, junk yard license, and fines.

Administration expenses are estimated at $3,405 and include $100 in payment to supervisors; $1,700, secretary; $200, auditors; $100, office supplies; $300, advertising and printing; $150 telephone and postage; $55, bonds; $100, dues; $100, solicitor's fee, and $300 for other legal expenses.

Tax collection expenses are estimated at $2,980. This includes $2,500, tax collectors commission; $100, printing of tax bills; $200, postage for tax bills, and $180, premium on tax collector's bond.

Expenditures of $11,575 are listed for township buildings. This amount includes $50, materials and supplies; $1,600, fuel, water and lights; $500, repairs, $240, rent; $2,750, land purchase, and $5,190, total township buildings.

Police protection estimated at $7,000 includes $5,750, salaries; $100, materials and supplies, and 1,150, car expense.

Total fire protection is estimated at $1,000.

Other expenditures listed are $500, planning and zoning; $700, health and sanitation; $38,000, highways; $75, annual supervisors convention; $2,500, miscellaneous expenses.

The fire fund receipts are estimated at $20,240. Total receipts in the sinkind fund are estimated at $13,528.02.

Barry Backers Dismayed

Rocky's Machinery Purring In Oregon

EDITOR'S NOTE — The Oregon Republican presidential primary, to be held May 15, is one of three in which Gov. Nelson A. Rockefeller and Sen. Barry Goldwater will lock horns. The following article is the last of three stories by AP political writers analyzing the GOP primaries in New Hampshire, California and Oregon.

By GORDON G. MACNAB

PORTLAND, Ore. (AP)—Gov. Nelson A. Rockefeller comes campaigning Thursday into Oregon where a top-flight state organization has more than a month of solid work behind it.

Sen. Barry Goldwater's backers, who watched in some dismay while this work was going on, are just now putting their organization together.

The New York governor and the Arizona senator will be in Oregon's May 15 Republican presidential primary. So will Richard M. Nixon, former vice president. There may be more.

Barry Momentum

Goldwater built up a great momentum in the fall, but the Draft Goldwater organization quit when the Arizona senator announced his candidacy. Then the national organization had trouble finding a state chairman.

It settled on Dr. Edwin M. Durno, 65, retired physician and one-term congressman, who is starting this week to put an organization together.

If Nixon's backers plan a campaign so he will show strength in the primary, they have yet to show their hand.

Experienced Chief

Rockefeller's supporters are at work under an experienced team headed by William Walsh, 61, Coos Bay attorney and one-time state Senate president. He resigned from the state board of Higher Education, which runs the state universities and colleges, to take command.

Two top assistants are Robert L. Ridgley, 30, Portland attorney, and F. F. Montgomery, 40, Eugene insurance man and minority leader of the state House of Representatives.

They already have some county organizations set up, 400 pounds of Rockefeller campaign literature on hand, an advertising firm at work, and the editorial nod of former Gov. Charles A. Sprague, publisher of the Salem Oregon Statesman.

Last October, 60 per cent of the state's county Republican chairmen replied to an Associated Press questionnaire with overwhelming support for Goldwater. Rockefeller ran behind just about everybody else, even the dark horses, despite having been in the state for the western Republican conference a short time earlier.

Goldwater Stronger

Later, after President John F. Kennedy's assassination, the same group was asked for its views. Goldwater was still well ahead of everyone—with Nixon up strongly. Only three of 18 chairmen mentioned Rockefeller.

So if Rockefeller's campaign is getting a quick and solid start, it has farther to go.

Scranton On Ballot?

It starts behind not only Goldwater and Nixon, who are almost certain to be on the ballot, but also Ambassador Henry Cabot Lodge of Massachusetts and Gov. William W. Scranton of Pennsylvania, who may be on the ballot.

Oregon's unique primary law makes the lineup uncertain, but this is sure: All of the generally advocated candidates who do not take themselves out of the race with positive action are going to be in it.

Oregon has about 400,000 registered Republicans.

In 1962 John F. Kennedy used his victory in Oregon to proclaim himself—just before the convention—the man who had proved he could win. He had swept all seven primaries he had entered, and did it in Oregon against every leading foe—although some of them did not campaign.

Debate Significant

In 1948, Harold E. Stassen and New York Gov. Thomas E. Dewey debated in Portland on a nationwide radio hookup. The debate, and Stassen's loss in the primary a few days later headed Dewey firmly toward the nomination.

Candidates have until March 6 to enter the Oregon presidential primary. They can, if they wish, do it by petition of 1,000 party members. Or, and this is the key, they will be entered by Secretary of State Howell Appling Jr. if he considers them to be generally advocated.

Appling has said Rockefeller, Goldwater and Nixon fit that. He will name the others about March 1. Then, if they do not file disclaimers saying, without reservation, that they are not candidates and do not intend to be, they are in the race.

Appling says he likely will name some Democrats for their party's vice presidential nomination. That would be an oddity but only a sideshow to the main business of finding out how the people stand on a Republican presidential nominee.

Rocky Swing

Rockefeller's swing into Oregon runs through Saturday with talks at Portland, Medford and Salem.

Goldwater has been booked by the county Republican organization as Portland's Lincoln Day speaker Feb. 11 in a 13,000-seat auditorium. Because he has had no drum-beating organization to get out the crowd, officials have had trouble deciding whether to open up all the seats and risk a thin crowd, or limit attendance to 2,000 dinner guests on the arena floor.

The driver of the car was identified as Jimmy Shepherd, 26, of Peach Bottom.

Bus Rides Sought For All Students

HARRISBURG (AP)—A Philadelphia Democrat revived the battle for free bus transportation for private and parochial school children Tuesday, calling for a statewide cost study.

"There is little doubt in my mind that legislation will be introduced next year trying to make bus service mandatory for all school children, public and non-public," declared Rep. Martin P. Mullen.

Mullen asked the Department of Public Instruction to undertake the study to determine what such service would cost the state. The request came during legislative hearings on the Scranton administration's proposed $1.168 billion spending program for fiscal 1964-65.

"We must have some figure so that we can get it into the budget and discuss it more thoroughly," declared Mullen, an advocate of state aid to nonpublic schools.

Dr. Charles H. Boehm, superintendent of public instruction, promised that a cost study would be made, "possibly in three or four weeks."

Rep. Blaine C. Hocker, R-Dauphin, chairman of the legislative hearings, ordered results of the survey delivered to each member of the House and Senate appropriations committees.

Boehm said the entire matter of state aid to private schools is under study by a special committee headed by Gov. Scranton.

In other testimony, State Revenue Secretary Theodore B. Smith said his department "can and will function satisfactorily under the recommended $10,951,543 in Scranton's budget."

Education, earmarked for $595,359,535 or 51 per cent of the total budget, took up most of the day.

Hocker rescheduled the department for next Tuesday to finish its testimony.

Mullen also brought up the issue of state aid to private schools.

"Unless some aid is given either directly or indirectly, private schools will have to close down," he warned. "We are going to be faced with a tremendous increase in the enrollment at public schools."

Despite the size of the department's budget request, Dr. Boehm said the program is "quite restrictive and conservative in accordance with the availability of the state's fiscal resources which could be applied for increases in 1964-65."

Scranton Disappointed With Senate

BALTIMORE (AP) -- Gov. William W. Scranton of Pennsylvania said Tuesday he was disappointed by the U. S. Senate's failure to grant special tax benefits to parents paying for their children's college education.

"I realize that this tax benefit meant money out of the federal treasury, but it is the kind of money that is needed by the parents," he said while enroute to a non-political speaking engagement in Kansas City.

Split Votes

The Senate in a 48-45 roll call vote defeated Tuesday a provision to grant parents with children in college special benefits. The defeat was credited to pressure from President Johnson.

Sen. Joseph Clark, D-Pa., voted against the measure. Sen. Hugh Scott, R-Pa., voted for it.

"This type of aid is, in my view, just as important as is federal spending on urban renewal and housing," Scranton said. He said he thought the administration should have backed it.

People In The Spotlight

William Green III of Philadelphia now has the unanimous endorsement to run for a full two-year term in Congress in the fifth district, the seat held by his late father.

Francis Smith, Democratic city chairman said that Mayor Jame Tate has withdrawn his opposition to Green's endorsement.

Greene, is a 25 year-old student at Villanova

Sen. Hugh Scott, R-Pa. told the Senate this week that Bobby Baker is waging a war of threats against senators investigating him.

Scott said, Baker, the former secretary to the Democratic majority, is planting veiled threats in comments to newspaper columnists aimed at members of the Senate Rules Committee which is conducting the investigation.

The Pennsylvania Republican said senators seeking to press the investigation thoroughly find themselves described as "eager, busy beavers, politicians and so forth."

He called this a "war through columnists," waged by Baker.

Prime Minister Nehru, who suffered a slight stroke, on January 7, said this week "I am much better now."

The Indian leader said, "I have made a good deal of progress. Indeed I am much better now and hope to be fully well in the future."

Dr. Robert Seamans, associate director of the National Aeronautics and Space Administration said the earliest time a decision can be made on whether to go ahead with another Ranger shot would be at the end of the week, when a special board of review meets with scientists of the Jet Propulsion laboratory, which conducted the attempt.

Ranger 6 hit the moon Sunday but the television cameras failed to function.

Dr. Seamans said that scientists had predicted the impact on the moon within a four tenths of a second period.

James E. Webb, the head of the U.S. space program said he hopes no more astronauts will follow the lead of John Glenn Jr. out of the space program and into such activities as politics.

"Glenn's decision to run for the U.S. Senate is a loss to us."

Asked what he thought of astronauts "using their fame to go into other activities," the space chief said, "I hope it will not become a precedent."

Webb quickly added "but each peson must decide where he can make his greatest contribution."

It takes longer to report a wreck than to prevent one.

Bright Steel Prospects Predicted

NEW YORK (AP) -- The Iron Age said Tuesday earnings prospects for the steel industry in 1964 are brighter than at any time since 1957.

The metalworking weekly cited forecasts of record high consumption of steel this year, cost-cutting efficiencies being realized from plant modernization and an outlook for labor peace.

Leading executives foresee a rate of steel usage higher than 1963's peak level. However, foreign producers are expected to supply possibly 6 million tons of this need, cutting that deep into the market potential for domestic steelmakers.

Even on this basis, domestic production of 110 million ingot tons, or more, would be indicated.

Iron Age said demand for steel is continuing a gradual improvement that has led to five successive weekly increases in output and pegged production operations at an annual output rate of over 115 million tons. Only once in the last six years—in 1963 -- has ingot production exceeded 100 million tons.

GOP Districts Better Educated

By Congressional Quarterly

WASHINGTON (CQ)—Northern, suburban House districts which send Republican Congressmen to Washington have the highest education levels in the United States. On the other hand, the lowest education levels are found in rural Southern districts with Democratic Congressmen.

These conclusions emerged from the first of a series of Congressional Quarterly studies based on the new Congressional District Data Book, released by the United States Census Bureau. The Census study, applying basic 1960 data to the current 435 districts, is the most complete in U. S. history.

School Years Completed

From the Census Bureau breakdown which showed the median number of years of school and college completed by all persons 25 years old or over, CQ grouped the districts with the highest and those with the lowest education levels.

Compared to a national median figure of 10.6 years of school completed, the 45 "most educated" districts all had over 12 school years completed. The 32 districts in the "least educated" grouping ranged from 6.8 to 8.5 years of schooling.

"Most Educated"

Three Congressional districts, each with median figures of 12.6 years of school and college completed, tied for first place as the "most educated." They were the California 28th District (Los Angeles Coastline and home of UCLA), Illinois 13th District (Northern Chicago Suburbs) and Virginia 10th District (Washington, D. C. Suburbs).

Districts predominantly suburban in complexion made up 17 of the 45 "most educated" districts, followed by 15 urban districts, 4 rural and 9 of a mixed nature.

"Least Educated"

On the other end of the education spectrum, CQ found 32 districts with the lowest median number of school years completed in the country. The lowest was the Texas 15th District (South Laredo), with 6.8 years. Second was the Louisiana 3rd District (South Central), with 7.2 years, and tied for third were the Virginia 5th (South Central) and Virginia 9th (Southwest). All had Democratic Congressmen.

Of the 32 "least edcated," 30 had Democratic and 2 had Republican Congressmen.

On a regional basis, the South was dominant among the least educated districts. Twenty-nine of the 32 were in the South, compared to 2 in the East, 1 in the Midwest and none in the West. The Eastern districts in this low education grouping were the West Virginia 5th (South), a depressed coal-mining region, and the Maryland 3rd (Baltimore), a low-income area which has had substantial immigration of Southern Negroes. The sole Midwestern district among the "least educated" was the Missouri 10th (Southeast), a soybean and cotton-producing area sometimes spoken of as "Little Dixie."

Education Levels Compared

(Median number of school years completed)

Lowest states—Kentucky and South Carolina, 8.7 years.

Highest districts — California 28th (Los Angeles); Illinois 13th (Suburban Chicago); Virginia 10th (Suburban D. C.), 12.6 years.

Lowest district — Texas 15th (South-Laredo), 6.8 years.

Pennsylvania—10.2 years.

15th Congressional District—9.6 years.

FTC Raps Firm For False Ads

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Federal Trade Commission (FTC) ruled Wednesday that a Tyrone, Pa., chemical company used deceptive advertising directed at children to obtain agents for selling a salve they manufactured.

Cited by the FTC were the Wilson Chemical Co. and the Wilson Chemical Co., Inc., maker of "White Cloverine brand salve." The FTC said the firms used "threats of legal action, coercion and intimidation" to get people to accept and pay for the merchandise sent to them.

Sigurd Anderson, FTC commissioner, said Wilson advertised mainly in comic books and that its ads did not "clearly and adequately" inform the readers that he was obligated to sell the product.

Anderson said the FTC's findings showed that the two firms would offer 14 cans of salve, valued at $7, free if a person would return a coupon clipped from their ads. By submitting the coupon the person was committed to buy or sell the products.

Failure to reveal that the so-called free goods were given with an obligation was "the basis for finding that the advertisements were misleading and deceptive," Anderson said when the persons refused to accept or sell the salve, the firms sent letters threatening legal action and embarrassment.

Jobless Bill Worries GOP Solons

HARRISBURG (AP)—A sizable number of Republican legislators are distressed and worried because Gov. Scranton called for a special session on the controversial unemployment compensation problem in a critical election year.

"The timing is especially bad for some of our fellows who expect primary opposition," said one ranking GOP lawmaker. "And this could hurt us very seriously in the November election, too."

He said the problem is acute for legislators in areas where unemployment is relatively high and the party strength is marginal.

Reliable sources said at least 24 Republicans in the House and 6 in the Senate will refuse to vote on the governor's reform bill until after the April 28 primary.

Scranton overrode objections from legislative leaders in calling a special session to begin next Tuesday.

He is reliably reported to be unconvinced that action will harm election prospects and he is believed to be under considerable pressure from business groups to close alleged loopholes in the law.

The Unemployment Compensation fund, which had a balance of $739 million 12 years ago, is now in debt to the federal government by $167 million.

Scranton proposes to close some of the loopholes and raise the employer-paid tax base to revitalize the fund over a period of years.

Several Republicans said privately the governor should have taken the opening offered this week by the Pennsylvania AFL-CIO which urged that the reform plan be put off until next year, both to avoid political partisanship in upcoming elections and to give the federal government an opportunity to come up with a solution.

Primary Free For All

Three opinion polls conducted by Louis Harris in New Hampshire and published in The Daily Record this week reveal the expected:

1. Rockefeller's divorce and remarriage to a divorced woman is a serious political liability which the Republican presidential candidate cannot wish away.

Rockefeller has argued that his personal life is a private affair and should not affect public judgment of his political or governing abilities. Unfortunately, a nation with about five million more women than men voters will not accept his argument easily.

2. Goldwater's conservative and sometimes radical views on public policy are hurting him in New Hampshire although the state is traditionally conservative.

The Harris poll showed that a majority of Republican New Hampshire voters disagreed with Goldwater on six out of 11 major positions he has taken during his campaign.

They do not agree that the federal government is going too fast on civil rights, that medical care should be left to private companies, that we should oppose the atomic test ban treaty, that American missiles are undependable, that we should consider leaving the United Nations if Red China is admitted, nor that the NATO commander in Europe should be free to decide when to use nuclear weapons.

These opinions are of course expressed in a professional survey and not at the election polls. Answers at the polls are often different. But the poll answers are plausable.

They tend to confirm the opinion that neither Goldwater nor Rockefeller would make a strong national candidate for the Republican party next November.

The poll also showed that only three per cent of Republican voters would not support Pennsylvania Governor William Scranton. Scranton was second only to Henry Cabot Lodge in this category.

The Harris poll is one of the first sound confirmations of the widely-expressed opinion that Scranton would make an ideal compromise candidate for the Republican Presidential nomination.

South Viet Nam Dilemma

The ease with which the Johnson administration has accepted a third new government in war-torn South Viet Nam in less than six months indicates a lack of clear policy or direction in American policy there.

U. S. Ambassador Henry Cabot Lodge was justly applauded for his cold attitude to the former Diem family regime, his encouragement of the military junta which overthrew the Diems, and his support of that junta which promised a bolder fight against the Communists, a freer hand with the people of South Viet Nam, and more popular support.

The United States should have condemned that military junta for killing the ruling Diem brothers, but it had to support the new junta as the only ruling power in a nation under attack and hope for the best.

The promised reforms and more vigorous battle against the Communists did not take place rapidly.

Political squabbles divided the junta and its popular leader, Maj. Gen. Duong Van "Big" Minh, was not immediately successful.

The Viet Cong stepped up its drive and the government of South Viet Nam, which we are supporting with military and financial aid, lost more ground.

Last Thursday, a new junta, led by Maj. Gen. Nguyen Khanh, seized power from the "Big" Minh junta. General Khanh promised a more vigorous fight against the Viet Cong and charged that members of the Minh junta were secretly plotting a neutralist policy with French diplomats.

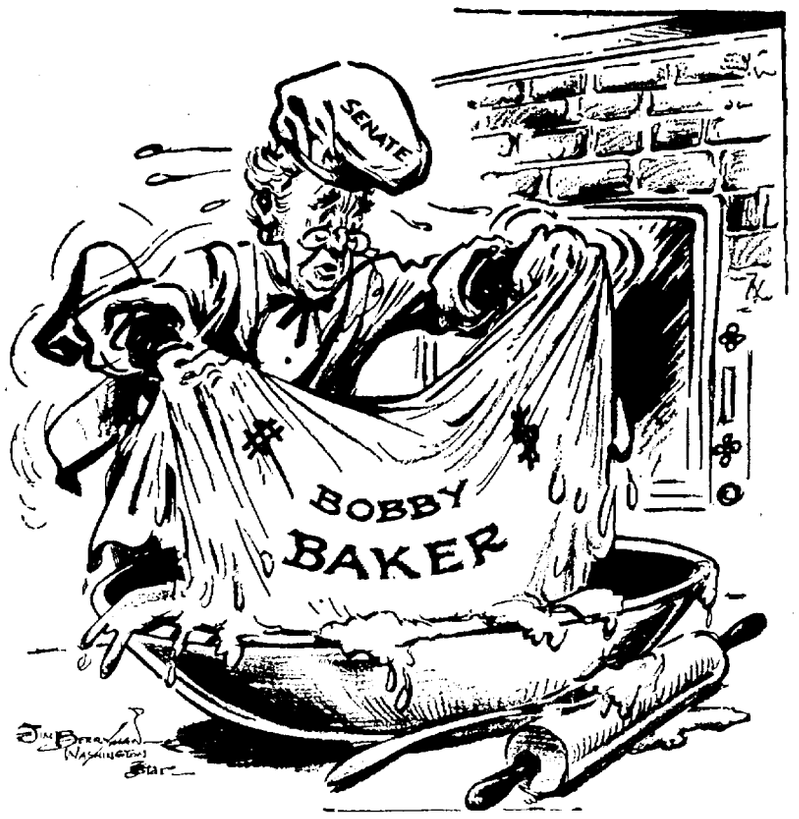
His positions are of course popular with the United States, but they are only promises made to gain and hold power. We must wait to see if General Khanh is any more effective than General Minh. We have no reason to believe so yet.

We must not accept the new junta or recognize it too quickly. If we do, no South Viet Nam government, military or civilian, will ever be able to trust our support. We should not change horses so easily in the middle of a deadly race for freedom.

Comment Of The Day

"It is absolutely impermissable for them to treat enemies as friends and friends as enemies and to ally themselves with United States imperialists, reactionaries of various countries and the renegade Tito clique against fraternal countries and all revolutionary peoples in a vain pursuit of world domination through United States-Soviet collaboration."

—An attack by Communist China on Russian cooperation with the United States in Hung Chi, ideological journal of the Chinese Communist Central Committee.



'Sticky Stuff, This Dough'

Robert S. Allen

The Allen-Scott Report

Ike In New Role

Paul Scott

WASHINGTON — Former President Dwight Eisenhower is slated to essay a new role at the Republican convention in San Francisco in July.

In addition to delivering a major address and possibly exercising an influential hand in the selection of the presidential ticket, Eisenhower also will act as a radio-TV commentator.

He has signed a contract with the ABC network for a reputed $100,000.

Under the agreement negotiated by James Hagerty, ABC vice president and one-time Eisenhower press secretary, the former Preisdent will participate in a series of pre-convention programs, and during the conclave deliver daily commentaries and appear in special broadcasts.

Still under consideration is whether Eisenhower will similarly "cover" the Democratic convention in Atlantic City in August.

For the gathering, Hagerty already has signed up Assistant Senate Democratic Leader Hubert Humphrey, Minn., a vivid and fluent speaker, and is negotiating with two other equally talented party notables — former President Harry Truman and Senator Sam Ervin, N.C., a Southern leader.

Senator Humphrey has President Johnson's approval in undertaking this unusual activity. Humphrey asked him about it before signing up, and the President gave his blessing.

Reason Humphrey took this precaution is his vice presidential aspirations.

The Minnesotan is making no bones of his ambition to be the President's running mate. So, while eager to be a radio-TV commentator at the Democratic convention, Humphrey carefully made certain this wouldn't be an obstacle to seeking the vice presidential nomination.

Political Crossfire — General Wallace Greene, Marine Corps commandant, is finding himself in a very unhappy position as a result of Lieutenant Colonel John Glenn's announced intention to run for the Senate.

Greene is in the middle of a torrid backstage tug-of-war over Glenn's retirement from active service.

Senator Stephen Young, D-O., whose seat Glenn is seeking, is burning up Pentagon telephone wires with strident demands that no favors be extended Glenn in processing his retirement. Simultaneously, Representative Wayne Hays, D-O., a strong 1960 supporter of President Johnson, is equally vehemently clamoring for a speed-up.

Young's theory is that the longer it takes Glenn to be released, the less time he will have to campaign in the May 5 primary. Hays' motivation is exactly the reverse.

He bluntly served notice on General Greene that "all hell will break loose" if Glenn isn't out of the Marine Corps by March 1.

Young contends it takes an average of 60 days to process the retirement of a regular Marine Corps officer. On that basis, Glenn would not be released until sometime in April — leaving him only about one month to campaign.

That is exactly what Glenn's backers fear. They argue that everywhere the popular and personable astronaut goes, he noticeably gains strength. So they are pressing hard to get him out on the hustings as soon as possible. They maintain he gave the Marine Corps "six weeks' notice," and that should be ample time to process his departure.

Spearheaded by Representative Hays, thay have fixed a March 1 deadline and are vigorously putting the heat on General Greene for Glenn's release by then.

The Marine Corps commandant, involuntarily caught in the middle of this furious political crossfire, is warily steering a neutral course. On one hand, he has assured Senator Young that preferential treatment will not be given Glenn; on the other, equally firm word has been given Hays that there will be no delay in processing Glenn's papers.

It remains to be seen just when he does get out.

Unique Candidate — Don't send any campaign funds to Senator Margaret Chase Smith!

The lady from Maine, who tossed her bonnet into the New Hampshire Republican presidential primary last week, wants no contributions, and is returning those sent her. She has already sent back a $1,000 check.

Contribtuions began pouring into her office from all over the country the day after she formally announced. They range from a quarter to the $1,000 check. All are being returned where the addresses are known. Where that's not possible, the money is being deposited in a special account whose disposition will be determined later.

Senator Smith intends to finance her own race for the Republican presidential nomination. That obviously sharply limits her activities, but that's the way she wants it.

The Pennsylvania Story

Racket Crackdown

By Mason Denison

HARRISBURG — The State Department of Justice — finally — has moved in the direction of trying to call a halt to the Philadelphia traffic ticket racket that has been plaguing upstate Pennsylvanians.

The move now on the part of the Attorney General follows detailed disclosure of the amazing extent of the racket by this column in a series of four articles last month, and a letter last week by two upstate State Representatives to the Attorney General requesting that steps be taken to halt the practice of ticketing upstate motorists for traffic violations in the City of Brotherly love — when the victims hadn't even been in Philadelphia on the dates cited.

While the two lawmakers in question — Representative Erwin L. Murray, Cameron County and Representative Russell E. Headlee, Greene County — expressed satisfaction over this move on the part of the Attorney General to seek a means of eliminating the racket, they were irked and decidedly nettled that the Attorney General made no reference to any intent to thoroughly probe the how-come-existence of the racket in the first place and the prosecution, if warranted, of those responsible.

Attorney General Walter W. Alessandroni's reply to the two lawmakers contained this copy of a letter from himself to Philadelphia Mayor James Tate:

"This Department has had numerous complaints from nonresidents of Philadelphia regarding the alleged errors of Philadelphia police officers in reporting traffic violations.

"As a consequence, it appears that on numerous occasions such nonresidents have received notices that they are charged with violations occurring on dates when the vehicle was not in the City of Philadelphia.

"It is quite understandable that police officers might on rare occasion make errors in transcribing the license number of a motor vehicle which is involved in a traffic violation.

"Likewise, clerks may make errors in reading reports of violations, particularly in those cases where the handwriting is unclear or smudged. However, it appears that these errors occur with such great frequency in Philadelphia as to constitute an imposition upon and harrassment of the owners of said vehicles. I enclose copies of editorials which demonstrate the public reaction in this situation.

"Matters have now reached such proportions that some members of the State Legislature want to have a legislative investigation. It would be my thought, however, that every effort should first be made to take administrative measures to see if the situation can be corrected.

"It is true that the Code provides for a procedure for nonresidents whose vehicles were not in the City on the date of the violation to supply and pay a notary fee for an affidavit to that effect. This is in itself, however, a burden and, of course, is not known by the average citizen.

"It is my suggestion, therefore, that representatives of the Law Department, the Chief Magistrate, Philadelphia Police Department, the Secretary of Revenue and this Office meet to determine if workable procedures to mitigate the hardship imposed on innocent persons can be made.

"If you are in agreement, I would appreciate it if you would advise me of the designees of the Law Department and the Police Department, and by copy of this letter I am making the same request of Chief Magistrate Daly and Secretary of Revenue Theodore B. Smith, Jr.

"In addition to discussing methods of improving the reporting and transcribing of notices of traffic violations, consideration can be given to a form to be prepared to accompany all notices of traffic violations addressed to nonresidents in which such nonresidents are advised that if the report of the traffic violation is erroneous by reason of the fact that the vehicle involved was not in Philadelphia on the date charged, or that the same was not operated by the owner at the time of the alleged violation, said notice would be withdrawn upon the filing and execution of said form.

"The form could provide spaces for information as to the whereabouts of the vehicle on the date charged, and if in Philadelphia and not operated by the owner thereof, the name of the person in whose custody the vehicle was on the date in question.

"The person executing the said form would certify that he does so with full knowledge that any misrepresentation of facts alleged therein would subject him to legal sanctions.

Dear Abby

A Word To The Wise

By Abigail Van Buren

DEAR ABBY: I hope you put this in your column because lots of guys have the same problem and you could do a couple of million of us a big favor by answering this one question: Why don't parents want their daughters to have anything to do with a man in uniform unless he is an officer? Enlisted men are just as good as officers and a lot better than most civilians, yet we are treated like dirt. I have come to the point of dressing in civvies and lying to girls' parents so I can take a nice girl out, because if most parents knew I was an enlisted man they'd run me off the place. What do people have against enlisted men?

ENLISTED MAN

DEAR ENLISTED: Most parents don't make any distinction between an enlisted man and an officer. They simply rule out all men in uniform because they are skeptical of a man who is here today and who could be gone tomorrow. The cream of any nation's crop wears the enlisted man's uniform (for a time, at least) and I would remind parents that they could be passing up gold because it doesn't look as good as brass.

DEAR ABBY: My husband and I have been married five years and we have four children. (Two are twins.) Well, my mother-in-law complained to her son right in front of me that we were having too many children. I am 26 and he is 28 and I think we are old enough to know what we are doing. Don't you think my husband should have told his mother to mind her own business? Or do you think it was okay for him to have laughed it off as a joke and said, "They are cheaper by the dozen, Mom!"

NOT LAUGHING

DEAR NOT: Sharpen your sense of humor instead of your claws and you'll be a lot happier. Your mother-in-law probably meant no offense.

DEAR ABBY: The item in your column about the mailman who was shocked to find some women on his route in their bathrobes at two in the afternoon floored me.

What is that supposed to prove? If she happens to be changing clothes when the doorbell rings, what is she supposed to answer the door in? Or should she just go to the door in whatever state of undress she's in at that moment?

The mailman's wife said that SHE always got up in the morning and put on a foundation garment, hosiery and a fresh housedress to do her housework. Well, bully for her! I can just see myself putting on my girdle and hose to crawl under the beds to mop, or to scrub my floors. Phooey on him!

By Walter Lippmann

A study of what General De Gaulle said on Friday shows, I believe, that the crucial difference between us is about the realities in Asia.

We do not differ about ideals and ideologies, or about aims, purposes and hopes. We are not trying to build a new American empire on the mainland of Asia, and France is not trying to recover the empire which she has lost.

We differ about how to deal with the facts — with the fact that the Red government in Peking rules over the 700 million Chinese on the mainland, with the fact that the neighboring countries in Southeast Asia are weak and vulnerable, with the fact that Red China is an expanding and aggressive power.

These differences come to a sharp focus in the immediate and practical problem of the civil war in Vietnam. But even here, we are agreed in our purposes. France and the United States are both concerned to save Southeast Asia from a conquest by the Red Chinese. The crux of our differences is how, not whether, to save Southeast Asia.

The American view is that Southeast Asia can be saved only if there is a strong government in Saigon which is able to win the civil war. Only after military victory can any larger negotiated settlement be talked about, in fact even considered.

For any suggestion that the United States is considering negotiation will destroy the fighting morale of the South Vietnamese and precipitate in the whole region a general collapse of all resistance to Red China.

On the other hand, General De Gaulle's view is that there cannot be a military solution of the Vietnamese civil war. This is what he told President Kennedy in 1961. Our answer to this has been that we have no alternative but to keep on trying to win the civil war.

General De Gaulle's reply to this is that the situation is deteriorating toward a disaster which will leave us an intolerable choice between a humiliating withdrawal and engaging in a large war, at least as large as the Korean War.

The time to begin negotiations is while we are still strong; that is to say, while there is an undefeated South Vietnamese army and while so much of the country is still in non - Communist hands.

General De Gaulle's argument is unanswerable unless we are able to persuade ourselves that the civil war can be won. The official American view is that we have to say unreservedly that the war will be won and refuse to think about what we shall do if it cannot be won. This is the critical weakness of our policy in Southeast Asia: not that we are training and equipping the anti - Communists to fight the Communists, but that while we are doing it, this is the only policy we have. If it is not a winning policy, then all is lost. We have staked everything on one card.

This is a reckless and unstatesmanlike gamble. A competent statesman, like any competent military strategist, never locks himself into a commitment where there is no other position on which he can fall back. In Southeast Asia we have bolted the doors and do not have that indispensable part of any sound strategy, a fall - back position.

This is where General De aulle is in fact rendering us a signal service. He is opening the door to the possibility that Southeast Asia can oe saved from Chinese conquest by political developments which can be stimulated and by diplomatic bargaining which can be undertakn.

It is said in Washington that this is improbable, that North Vietnam which is now under Chinese domination can never be pried loose and can never participate in the neutralization of the whole region.

Open Space Zoning

(Last Of Two Articles)

In total community planning, two key factors predetermine the amount of open space and its flexible use.

According to Urban Land Institute, a research organization in Washington, D.C., a typical pattern might have 100 lots to a block with 40 per cent of the land reserved for open space.

The use of the open space would be determined by the topography and natural features, plus peculiarities of the market, type of recreation areas, desirability of greenways to separate residential areas from other land uses, and by other aspects of the community and site.

A 10-acre design study demonstrates how community development innovations can make use of bypassed land. Also, land unsuitable in the traditional pattern can be fully utilized where density control zoning is permitted.

There are two important steps recommended by ULI for zoning reform. One is the establishment of density of dwelling units per acre rather than minimum lot size as the basic criterion for residential development.

The other is the setting of performance standards covering use, bulk, and density relationships as a substitute for specified dimensional regulations.

ULI advocates that "improving the appearance and livability of our communities can only be achieved if builders, developers, planners, municipal officials and citizens alike are willing to accept new developmental concepts.

The first order of business is that public officials must be ready to modify existing zoning and subdivision regulations in order to permit application and use of improved land use technique.

Perhaps it would be best to say it is a battle of innovations against traditions in community development.

No longer is it "what was good for my grandfather is good for me." Slowly but surely tradition is giving way to sound thinking and modern improvements. What is good for the goose is not always good for the gander.

The Monroe County Planning Commission has a big job ahead. So do the political subdivisions under their command.

The next four years will tell the tale of Monroe County. Will it be a mountainside depicting honky tonks, or will it be an area that will make one proud to be a resident of the Poconos?

Speaking Of Your Health:

Removal Of Facial Scars

By Lester L. Coleman, M.D.

Facial scars, blemishes and acne pitting are a particular source of distress because of their unattractive appearance. Many methods have been used to remove them and to reduce their disfigurement.

For this purpose the skin has been subjected to cautherization with chemicals, surgery, electrocoagulation and dessitation (drying), in order to improve the cosmetic appearance, especially of the face.

All of these procedures have been moderately beneficial, but none really completely fulfilled the promise of those who enthusiastically employed them. The real contribution to the beautification of the scarred skin lay in the groundwork that these methods established. They were the forerunners of today's "dermabrasion" technique.

Wire Brush Surgery

Known also as "wire brush surgery" or skin planing, dermabrasion offers the greatest benefits to the facial disfigurement of scarring.

The procedure is usually performed by dermatologists (skin specialists) or plastic surgeons. A high-speed rotary abrasive brush is painlessly applied to the skin defect after the skin is anesthetized. This electric "sand-papering" device carefully removes the outer layers of the skin, smoothing over the pitted marks.

Seven to ten days later, the outer skin heals under a hard protective crust. Later the crusting falls off and leaves a healthy skin, usually unmarred by the previous markings.

Dermabrasion has all of the advantages of previous methods, and fewer disadvantages.

Patients are carefully selected for this particular type of local skin surgery.

Dr. James W. Burks, of Tulane University School of Medicine in New Orleans, cites his reasons for the careful selection of certain patients for dermabrasion. He says: "1) the patient must show objective evidence of disease or a cosmetic defect that can be relieved by planing. 2) Patients must understand that improvement of the scarring, rather than total elimination, is the ultimate goal. 3) Patients must be free of obvious psychological disturbances and emotional distress."

Best Results

Scars from acne, chicken pox, small pox, burns and injuries respond exceedingly well to this procedure. The best results are obtained if the scars are of recent origin.

Patients of all ages have been benefited by this technique.

Dermabrasion has also been used successfully to remove mild skin wrinkles.

Tattoos have in many instances been erased by the abrasive method. Although the results of tattoo removal sill leave much to be desired, patients often welcome even a slight visible improvement of a stigmatizing skin tattoo.

The psychological advantage to be gained by dermabrasion are great for those who have been distressed by unsightly facial scarring.

Throw Down the Gauntlet

Knights of the Middle Ages wore leather gloves covered with metal. The purpose of these gloves, which were called gauntlets, was to protect the hands and wrists from being cut in combat.

At first the armor covered the whole hand, but it was modified so that it covered only the back of the hand — permitting a better grasp of a weapon with the palm.

A knight's way of challenging another to fight was to throw a gauntlet on the ground. The practice was the basis for the figurative expression "to throw down the gauntlet" — meaning to issue a challenge. "To pick up the gauntlet" means to accept a challenge.

Single School District Approved By E-Burg Board

EAST STROUDSBURG — East Stroudsburg Borough School Board reversed itself last night and voted unanimously for a single school district for Monroe County.

The board had previously favored the four-district plan, where the three present jointures would become unions similar to Stroud Union School District. Stroud Union would remain the same under the four-district plan.

Economy, Efficiency

Members of the board cited economy and efficiency as the main reasons for the switch. Secretary James Bunnell quoted possible tax figures given him yesterday by Walter Sebring, assistant County Superintendent of Schools.

"For the year 1962-63," Sebring later told the Daily Record, "If Monroe County had been a one-district county, the property tax assessment county-wide would have been approximately 38 mills."

Bunnell told the board that the 38 mills is approximately 10 mills less than East Stroudsburg's current tax.

Bunnell said that taxes from industries that exist or are being contemplated in other areas of the county would help to pay East Stroudsburg's tax burden on a single-district basis. The taxes would be equal for all in the county, reducing East Stroudsburg's currently high assessment of 48 mills.

In other business the board approved the January bills, totalling $52,082.76. The East Stroudsburg Area Jointure received $51,930.75 of this.

'Radar Enforced' Postings Termed Illegal By Counsel

STROUDSBURG — The thousands of signs along Pennsylvania highways indicating that certain roads are "Radar Enforced" may not be sufficient warning to make a legal speeding arrest with radar equipment.

Counsel for Leonard Goldberg, a Bethlehem real estate broker, charged in Monroe County Court yesterday that to be in accordance with the act authorizing the use of radar, highway signs must be marked "Radar in Operation."

Atty. Maxwell Cohen of Stroudsburg said the radar signs on Rt. 611 indicating the highway is "radar enforced" were not lettered in accordance with the act and therefore were improper.

Goldberg was arrested for speeding with the aid of radar on Rt. 611, a short distance south of Mt. Pocono by Edwin Smith, a Pensylvania State Policeman.

Cohen contended the same question was argued in front of a Cambria County judge and the jurist found highways must have signs indicating that radar is in operation at the time of the speeding arrest.

President Judge Fred W. Davis placed the case on the argument list for March. James R. Marsh, Monroe County district attorney, represented the commonwealth.

Placed On Probation

In another case Ralph Snow, who is now working at Buck Hill Falls, and who pleaded guilty to assault and battery in December of 1962, was placed on probation for one year and fined $1 plus court costs.

Snow had received mental treatment in the Allentown State Hospital. After imposing the sentence Judge Davis wished the young man the best of luck and gave him 60 days in which to pay the court costs.

$75,000 Suit Filed Against Local Man

SCRANTON — A suit to collect $75,000 in damages from Ralph E. Shupp of 517 Thomas St., Stroudsburg, has been filed in Federal Court in Scranton by five New Jersey residents.

The complaint is based on a two-car accident Feb. 15, 1963, at the intersection of Rts. 74 and 7 at Fort Lauderdale, Fla.

Plaintiffs are Fred P. Riegel and his wife, Audrey, who ask $25,000; William B. Marsden and his wife, Marie, $25,000; William Riegel Jr., $15,000, and Marie Marsden, as executive under the will of William Riegel Sr., $10,000.

According to the complaint all the plaintiffs, and the late William Riegel, suffered injuries while riding in a car operated by William B. Marsden. The defendant, it was alleged, was operating the other car.

Stroudsburg Council Okays TV Relay Station Transfer

STROUDSBURG — The Blue Ridge Broadcasters, Inc. was given formal approval by the Stroudsburg Borough Council last night to operate the television cable system in Stroudsburg.

Blue Ridge bought the Stroudsburg - East Stroudsburg cable system from Pocono TV Relay, Inc. nine months ago. It needed council's approval to take over the original franchise granted to the Pocono firm in 1951.

Harold Snyder, borough manager, told council that all Blue Ridge's necessary papers were in order. He specifically said it had filled the borough's bond and insurance requirements.

Under questioning by councilman Joseph Kovarick Earl Heydt, a Blue Ridge official, said that all radiation problems caused by the cable would be corrected immediately.

Heydt also said by the end of May most of the system's cable would be replaced with new cable. He said that since taking over Blue Ridge has replaced about 75 per cent of the cable servicing the trunk lines.

Council also passed a resolution restricting parking on the south side of Fulmer Ave., between Fifth and Wallace Sts.

Mayor Joseph Small noted that the problem of congested parking also exists on Brown St., between Fifth and Wallace Sts.

A flashing traffic signal was approved for purchase for the troublesome intersection at Fourth and McConnell Streets.

Snyder said he was in receipt of a permit from the State Dept. of Highways authorizing the installation a flashing yellow caution signal on McConnell St., and a flashing red light on Fourth St.

Harvey Burrus, sewage plant manager, discussed the operation of the plant with council in an effort to dispell rumors that he and his staff are working full time at the plant.

Burrus told council that due to the fluctuating conditions at the plant his crew has to work odd hours and often time at night.

The discussion ended when Robert Weichel, council president, told Burrus he was doing a good job and the plant was well managed.

In other action the council:

Passed an ordinance reducing Mayor Small's salary from $1,000 to $800. Small explained this was necessary under the law covering Pennsylvania boroughs.

Directed Harold Heberling and Walter Dreher, Stroudsburg realtors, to prepare a written appraisal of damage caused to the Kitson property at 303 Main St. as a result of building the Stroudsburg - East Stroudsburg flood control project.

Authorized the manager to readvertise the borough's intent to collect a $5 per capita tax for 1964. This ordinance has to be re-advertised every year.

Gave its approval for the advertising of bids for a new police car. The borough buys a new car every year.

Appointed a committee to investigate ways to stage the borough's 130th anniversary next year. Small, Snyder and Kovarick were appointed to a committee to visit towns who had recently put on such celebrations.

Among January's expenses was $1,994.16 for snow removal in the borough. The police department reported $428.50 was collecting fines during January.

Balances in various funds showed $8,556.41 in the general operating fund; $18,281.04 in sewer revenue account, and $9,680.45 in the 1954 street construction and drainage sinking fund.

Cy Barrett Says

Paid Creativity

DEAR CY:

My husband is very active in business affairs so I feel left out and inadequate. Our only daughter is living in Germany. I would like to carry on some job or business in my home. Would a high school education qualify me for light writing? I always liked this in school.

INADEQUATE

DEAR INADEQUATE:

I know of no "light writing" unless it is the heavy effort required to produce comedy. Fred Allen confessed to one free night a week during his 39 weeks of radio writing and acting each year — and the acting took less energy. Fred's book, "Treadmill To Oblivion," explains how to turn brains to sweetbreads producing laughs and he ought to know.

He was juggling dishes and throwing out wisecracks to somber vaudeville audiences in Boston when other boys were in high school. Don't be discouraged! Selling your work for money will produce a strong feeling of achievement. Even a $25 check will rocket your morale and give you the sense of accomplishment you sorely need.

Study magazine formats and styles. Write in volume. Become as much at home in the post office as at your typewriter. One day you will proudly let slip the information you have been paid for your creative work. Writing can give you recognition and confidence. Important elements in holding a husband, by the way.

CY

DEAR CY:

The only thing hilarious about having your appendix out is the greeting cards you receive. The day I had my operation was my birthday and wedding anniversary combined. I have seen a few cards and want to sell ideas for them. You told a reader recently about submitting greeting card ideas to one publisher at a time to give exclusives and become a steady supplier. What mistakes should I avoid? Where can I get addresses of greeting card companies buying ideas from women? Many women successful in this work?

MRS. APPEN DIX

DEAR MRS. APPEN DIX:

Steve Shannon, executive director of the Greeting Card association, tells me, "Not many free lancers can create good ideas for greeting cards. Occasionally, one will be successful and greeting card firms constantly watch their mail for these individuals." Most would-be free lancers make the mistake of concentrating on verse.

Much card copy is written as people talk . . . not in rhyme or rhythm. And, don't use the pronouns "I" or "we" in wording your copy. They are limiting and will establish you as a non - profit enterprise. Steve Shannon's organization has just published a new edition of its "Free Lance Market List." If you wish one, send 15 cents in U.S. postage stamps to the Greeting Card Association, 30 Rockefeller Plaza, New York, New York (10020). Don't send trading stamps. Recently, Mr. Shannon has been plagued with trading stamps sent by mistaken free - lancers expecting to spear a list.

CY

DEAR CY:

You said it! It is the shopper, not the professional thief, who is responsible for 90 per cent of the stealing in stores. I have often wondered if the big round mirrors placed in retail outlets actually helped store owners and managers apprehend thieves. Do they? My guess is they are placed on walls to scare customers out of trying to steal. I believe an honest person is one who is afraid of being caught doing otherwise.

ARCHIE KENT

DEAR ARCHIE:

Those big glass eyes act as a shopper's conscience. They also keep store personnel posted on how clean shoppers' shopping habits are at any instant. Bulls-eye mirrors are a two-way view as enticement itself. According to many, the tempting and the tempted should share equal guilt. Skipping philosophy I know self-service merchandising has brought more things to more people . . . including a cultivated taste for thievery.

Discussion Planned On Vine Paving

EAST STROUDSBURG — East Stroudsburg Borough Council has told representatives of the East Stroudsburg Area Joint School Board that they would definitely discuss plans for the paving of Vine St. along the south side of the old elementary school.

But William H. Schnaitman, council president, said, "As far as I'm concerned, we definitely don't have enough money to do the job this year.

The East Stroudsburg Jointure has indicated that they do not have sufficient funds to pave the road, but want to join the borough in doing the job to protect children who will be picked up by buses along the street.

The Borough Council says that since it will be more or less a private school road, the jointure should shoulder the cost.

The cost for paving a 265-foot section would be $5,405 for a bituminous surface curbing, and 10-foot sidewalks. Elimination of one sidewalk was mentioned as a possibility to cut costs.

Council finally authorized the street committee to meet with school officials to determine if some financial arrangement could be reached.

In other business, Ralph Reppert, manager of the Stroudsburg office of Pennsylvania Power and Light Co., told council that 11 new mercury vapor lights in the business district have reduced rates $150 per month, from $790 $640.

Reppert said the reduction should give council "food for thought" toward revamping the lighting system.

Budget Adopted By Portland

PORTLAND — Portland Borough Council adopted a budget of $16,285 for the year. The council set tax millage at six mills. This is the same as last year.

In other business Atty. William Cassabaum, borough solicitor, told councilmen at a meet this week in Town Hall that the water company is in its final stages of making a map showing the distribution system and boundries.

And reported was the changing of a stop sign on alternate Rt. 611, where it meets the River Rd.

Dr. Powers To Speak At 'Y' Dinner

STROUDSBURG — Dr. Eugene P. Power, head of the Department of Education, East Stroudsburg State College and former associate secretary of the Allgheny YMCA, Pittsburgh, will speak Tuesday, Feb. 11, at Monroe County's 50th Annual Meeting in the YMCA, Stroudsburg.

Dr. Powers' subject will be "Living the 'Y' Way."

William Moran, chairman of the arrangements committee, said reservations are now being accepted at the local YMCA, and members are urged to make early reservations this week.

Other business will include the induction and installation of officers and new members of the board of directors.

They are D. A. Hansen, president; Francis Drake, vice president; Walter Sebring, 2nd vice president; Dr. Ray Barnard, recording secretary; and Arthur M. Trogner, treasurer.

Other new members of the board to be installed are Mrs. Jean Appel, M. Stiles Baldwin, Thomas Breslauer, Jacob L. Cohen, Ned Frick, Irving Goldberg, Jesse Lynch, and Mrs. Rose Schoch.

Heart Drive Ahead Of '63 Figures

STROUDSBURG — Monroe County Heart Fund Drive is ahead of last year in donations, Dr. Frank Sills, President of the Heart Assn. said last night.

Sills added, "I am grateful of the interest shown in our current drive and by the donations received so far. It certainly points to the fact that the public is becoming more aware of the work being done by the Heart association in the area."

"The old adage about money not being able to buy happiness, is disproved in this case, as many thousands of people are realizing the greatest measure of happiness through the fruits of money for research by the association," he continued.

He concluded saying, "Our office at 37 N. Seventh St., Stroudsburg, is open at all times for the convenience of those seeking advice or aid from the association."

Also scheduled to be heard on the program are Leo Frailey as master of ceremonies; Dorothy Lighttiser, pianist; Wendy Dreisbach, marimbist, and Nancy Keller, soloist.

He is the founder and a director of Vision, Inc.

Frailey is a graduate of Stroud Union High School and is a senior at East Stroudsburg State College. He is pre-enrolled at Faith Seminary.

Mrs. Lighttiser, wife of Rev. Lighttiser, attends East Stroudsburg State College.

CHEVELLE! MALIBU SUPER SPORTS by CHEVROLET

Background, new Chevelle Malibu Super Sport Coupe; foreground, Chevelle Malibu Super Sport Convertible.

What's so super about the Chevelle Malibu Super Sports?

Let's start with the inside. You get individually adjustable front bucket seats, soft, color-keyed leather-grain vinyl. Special instrumentation—ammeter, oil pressure and water temperature gauges. Bright metal console panel with either sporty 4-speed* stick shift or Powerglide* floor-mounted straight-line shift.

Under the hood? Lots of choice. Two Sixes—standard 120-hp and optional 155-hp*. Three V8's from the standard 283-cu.-in. job up to (you're reading it right!) 327-cu.-in.* Try this one to flatten out hills!

Some mighty appealing options*, too. Electric tachometer, Positraction rear axle, sintered metallic brake linings and sports-styled simulated walnut steering wheel, to name a few.

Even the exterior says it's super—special moldings and emblems, special wheelcovers that define the highly maneuverable Chevelle 115-inch wheelbase. (Chevelle is smaller than the Jet-smooth luxury Chevrolet, bigger than the popular Chevy II, and fits beautifully in between them.)

Actually, about all that's not super about these Malibu SS Coupes and Convertibles is their price. And there's so much more to find out about them, the only right way to take it all in is to drive one. Your Chevrolet dealer can take care of that, too.

Congress Will Act On Tocks This Year, WRA-DRB Told

WASHINGTON, D. C. — Congress will act this year on the Tocks Island National Recreation Area bills, governmental sources have told the Water Resources Association of the Delaware River Basin.

Congressional proponents of the bills have assured the WRA that the House Interior and Insular Affairs Committee will hold hearings on the bills before the Easter recess.

They added that the committee will make an effort to have the bills on the floor of the House before adjournment. Sen. Joseph S. Clark of Pennsylvania has said that he is confident that the Senate will pass the bills this year.

The WRA advises that no further contacts be made with the Interior and Insular Affairs committee, but that interested organizations prepare a statement on the bills so that as many people as possible can testify at the hearing.

British Buses Bound For Cuba

LONDON (AP)—Leyland Motors, Ltd., said this week the Cuban government has signed in Tavana a "declaration of intention" to buy 1,000 buses during the next four years.

If the order materializes, a company spokesman said, it would involve $25.2 million to $28 million. That would be in addition to an order already signed for 400 buses, involving nearly $11.2 million.

The declaration of intention, the spokesman said, "appears to confirm Cuba's plan to standardize on types of buses which we export.

Dr. Reed Outlines Programs For Handicapped

MOUNTAINHOME — Dr. James Reed, faculty member at East Stroudsburg State College, brought the Pocono Mountains Rotary Club up to date on the problem of handicapped children at a recent meeting at Pocono Top Hat Restaurant, Mountainhome.

Dr. Reed, introduced by Dr. Thomas Larkin, pointed out that the handicapped are an international problem. One person out of every five is handicapped in some form.

On the national level, Dr. Reed said that the President called together more than 40 people who worked to design a program to strengthen international activities already in progress. The individuals appointed also considered other activities on an individual basis.

Pennsylvania, Dr. Reed pointed out, ranks second with the states in the programs planned to aid handicapped. As an example, he cited a company in Southern Pennsylvania where two men with low intelligence quotients were operating a lucrative meter re-winding business.

These men, Dr. Reed stipulated, do not handle the finances, but were taught the mechanics of the business and have a backlog of orders .

Work For Workshop

In this area, he told the Rotarians, the Crippled Childrens Association of Northeastern Pennsylvania and the Parents Association for Retarded Children, are working to secure a permanent building for the sheltered workshop. He also noted that the organizations, with the aid of businessmen, are interested in a man to act as director for the workshop.

In closing, Dr. Reed reminded the members that prominent people in history were handicapped. Julius Caesar and Napoleon Bonaparte, were epileptics. He urged that "Rotarians and other progressive minded people help in whatever way you can so that handicapped children can walk with dignity and be happy productive citizens in our community."

He added, "Because of efforts during the past year, more than 100,000 people were restored to active, useful lives through the state and federal vocational rehabilitation program.

John Regan of Stroudsburg, past president of the Lions Club, was welcomed as a guest by Gene Rossi, president.

During the business session, it was announced that Jay Shumaker and Joseph Vogt were appointed to the nominating committee for the coming year.

The more than 20 Rotarians made plans for the card party to be held at The Inn Buck Hill Falls, Feb. 21. Warren E. Miller is in charge of final arrangements.

Just Between Us — —

—By Bobby Westbrook

Between Cy Giddings and Roberta Fleming Roesch it seems to me there have been a lot of letters in the paper recently about people asking for suggestions on what to do with their retirement. The experts seem to agree that everybody should be building toward retirement before they get their first job, practically.

So maybe it's high time we devoted some thought to the subject. What I'm getting wonderful training for is the role of not-so-impartial observer, but I haven't yet figured out how to make it pay off in retirement spending money.

Although maybe there's money involved in being a stream-watcher. Anyway I'm putting in some pleasant hours practicing on Glen Brook's miniature stream. The first thing in the morning I check to see how much of the rock in midstream is sticking out. If there are ice cakes floating down, this takes up a lot more time, especially if they start packing up at the bend and you get a chance to study a miniature ice jam in the making.

Another pleasant occupation would be that of child-watcher, and by that I don't mean baby-sitter or child care expert; just somebody that will watch admiringly while your children perform. I can do it in groups, as when Marleen Kleinhans' youth choir performed like angels last night in their new azure blue choir gowns, or I can do it singly as watching how cute your baby behaves in his bath, or listening to the cute remarks your toddler makes.

Or I could broaden that to include people - appreciating. Without any strain at all I can admire your taste in interior decorating, your skill in cooking, your painting, embroidery, tatting or in organization and program planning.

Seems as if in this world of highly competent critics, three should be a place for somebody who doesn't do anything superlatively well except appreciate the efforts of others. However, I'm afraid that it is one of the few talents which can only be given for free and would rapidly shrivel up if you had to do it on order.

Meanwhile, it's a very rewarding avocation.

GIRL SCOUT "COOKIES," that's what the photographer called these Senior Scouts representing the three troops to qualify for the Civil Defense certificates on Emergency Health Care, awarded by CD director Marvin Abel at graduation exercises at the General Hospital. Senior Scouts Prepared For Emergency Health Service

East Stroudsburg—In being prepared, the Girl Scouts of Monroe County aren't second to anybody, at least in the Civil Defense-sponsored project "Family Guide—Emergency Health Care."

Some 25 Senior Girl Scouts were the first group in the county to complete the course under the supervision of Dr. James Fahl. Final examinations and the presentation of certificates marked the final meeting on Tuesday night at the dispensary of the General Hospital of Monroe County.

The medical portion of the course was preceded by an orientation session conducted by Charles Perkins, a teacher at East Stroudsburg State College, and chairman of the county CD programming. He discussed a definition of fall-out; self protection and home shelters.

The medical portion of the course under the direction of Dr. Fahl consisted of three demonstration lessons.

The first was on nursing care, given by Mrs. Florence Ross and Mrs. Patricia Nevin.

The second was on care of injuries, conducted by Dr. Claus Jordan, Dr. Morton Spinner and Dr. Fahl.

The third session was on the home shelter program, conducted by Dr. James Reed of the college faculty.

The final session, held this week, included the examination and awarding of certificates.

Three Senior Troops in the county took part in the program: Troop 314, East Stroudsburg; Troop 356, Paradise, and Troop 338, Tannersville.

Scouts completing the course included:

Troop 314, Allyn McElwain, Karen Stabenow, Jackie Kintner, Shirley Booth, Mary Beth Pascarello, Paula Vogt, Barbara Shook, Mary Ann Fish, Nancy Eilenberger and Susan Baker.

Troop 356: Mary Darden, Thomasanio Montgomery, Greta Pratt, Kale Muller, Jean Zimmerman, Jackie Reddicks and Pat Chapko.

Troop 338: Mary Horn, Nancy Davies, Carol Munch, Linda Pipher, Mary Lou Harps, Susan Montgomery, Beverly Burns and Pat Brader.

Wilsons Honored At Farewell

Mountainhome — An informal farewell party was held Saturday at the Barrett Branch YMCA in honor of Mr. and Mrs. Robert Wilson. Wilson will leave in two weeks to take up duties at the Bethlehem YMCA, vacating the local post as YMCA director.

Pierce Harley, director of the Monroe County YMCA, and Mrs. Harley, attended the square dance and buffet which was planned by Mrs. Warren E. Miller.

A torn tree sprouting one dollar bills was presented to the Wilsons by William Helbig, president of the Barrett Branch YMCA board of directors. He thanked Wilson for his efforts in behalf of the local branch during the past six years and commended him for the summer camp sessions that have been held since the demise of the Barrett Township supervised playground program.

In accepting the gift and plaudits presented by Helbig, Wilson said he felt the best part of the work was in meeting "such nice people." He added, "We will miss the people in this area."

Attending the party were Mr. and Mrs. Theodore Price, Mr. and Mrs. Warren E. Miller, Mr. and Mrs. William Helbig, Mr. and Mrs. William Bodine, Mr. and Mrs. William E. Pickett, Mr. and Mrs. R. Thomas, Mr. and Mrs. W. Roy Williams, Mr. and Mrs. Harley and the Wilsons.

Stroudsburg WSCS Groups In Meetings

Members were asked to attend the Worlds Day of Prayer service on Friday, Feb. 14 at 2 p.m. at the Zion United Church of Christ when there will be a guest speaker from New York.

A rummage sale has been planned for Friday and Saturday, March 13 and 14 at the storeroom next to the East Stroudsburg Building and Loan Co., 75 Washington St., East Stroudsburg. Donations of anything saleable are being sought. Arrangements will be made later for pick-up where necessary.

The February meeting of the auxiliary will be held on the 11th at 8 p.m.

When you are using frosting for both filling and covering a layer cake, you can add fruit or nuts (or both) to the portion to be used for sandwiching the layers together. This trick adds interest!

THE WYCKOFF SHOPPER

It isn't often I have time enough to think back to childhood and smile over my impressions of a long-gone day. But the other morning while I was chatting with Walter Wyckoff on our main stairway, a customer approached and asked where she might have a wedding veil appraised.

"It is rosepoint," she said, extending a small box in Walter's direction, "and has been in my family since the 1700s. It was first owned by my grandmother's grandmother and all the brides in our family have worn it. It was insured for 1000.00, and the insurance company suggests that we have it re-appraised."

No one here being an authority on lace, although we love and appreciate its beauty, Walter contacted several persons, after we had first had a glimpse of the precious heirloom. "It is in almost perfect condition," said the little lady. "It is never cut. Each bride makes certain adjustments, but then it is restored and folded away."

Rosepoint. At mention of the word, my mind had flashed back through the years to the time when I was very young. I could read . . . that was about the extent of it. And I could imagine. Nothing delighted me more than poring over the society supplement of the Sunday papers, and mooning over the photographs of all the brides. Invariably, they wore veils of rosepoint that had been in their family for generations. Just the word rosepoint intrigued me. I had no idea what it was, but in the stores at that time, for five or ten cents a yard, one could buy lace trims for doll clothes of white lace, the tiny points of which were touched with either rose or blue. In my mind, I was sure this was identical, only of a much cheaper quality, not handmade.

Later, Mother explained to me that rosepoint is a specific kind of lace, and I was disappointed. Somehow, it seemed more romantic in my rose-tinged dreams than in solid ecru.

The other day, I ran my fingers over the rosepoint veil. It is lovely. I realized how very precious it must be to the woman who owns it, and how proudly each bride must walk as she wears it. It is obviously most valuable, as anyone knows who has ever tried to purchase even a tiny bit of handmade lace for a handkerchief corner. But how on earth could any expert appraise it? It is something beyond worth, whether five hundred . . . a thousand . . . or five thousand dollars. This is no longer just a length of lace. It is a filmy veil to which are attached a million hopes, a billion dreams, a wealth of love, and a legion of prayers. This is one family's heritage; their link to the future. It is a symbol of continuity, and of all the finer things of life that build for permanence.

At the moment, the veil, wrapped carefully in tissue and safely boxed, reposes in our safe here at Wyckoff's until we can have it appraised. Just knowing this is exciting. I can't even look in the direction of that safe without imagining I see a chubby cupid aiming at every single girl in the place. And now, being in a Valentine mood, I sincerely hope his arrows are sharp . . . swift . . . and merciless.

Keep Trees Pruned For Good Apples

By George Abraham

HOW TO PRUNE AN APPLE You can't grow quality apples if you don't keep the trees pruned. Let's take the hocus - pocus out of trimming. First, start with the young trees.

You'll want to avoid crotches with narrow angles. They are weaker than crotches with broad angles, and later on cannot support the weight of fruit. You can avoid narrow angles when the tree is young.

Crotch angle is influenced by a hormone produced in the tips of a young tree. If the entire center of the top is cut, the branches below "close in" on the center, resulting in sharp angled crotches.

You can avoid this by cutting out the center and cutting it back.

In short, keep the center open to let sunlight in. Then cut out any limbs that are dead, broken, too high or too low and those which rub or criss-cross one another.

Skinny, weak limbs come out next, along with those that crowd the center. I don't mean you should butcher the tree all in one operation. Heavy pruning will produce a growth of water sprouts (suckers) around in tree.

Prune a young tree lightly. If the mature tree is full of limbs, better do the job over a period of 3 years. Do a 1-3 of the tree now, and the remainder the next two years.

Do not bother to paint the wounds as they heal readily.

A GOOD VINE — Probably the most popular climbing vine you can grow is the Philodendron cordatum, sometimes called an "ivy", which it isn't. Ideal for planters, totem poles and for hanging pots.

When grown in a bottle of water it even does well. Troubles: Small leaves. This is due to poor soil, lack of light or overcrowding. Soils that cake hard are bound to produce small leaves with this philodendron.

STRAWBERRIES — In our series on strawberry varities, we must mention two which are resistent to the dreaded red stele disease-Redglow and Stelemaster. Redglow is an early type, does bets on rich, moist soils.

It's not recommended for dry or poor lands. Good for freezing. Stelemaster, while slightly tart, is not suited to poor or sandy soils. It's not recommended for freezing, but if you have red stele disease in your soil, it will pay you to try one of two above varities.

CYCLAMEN CARE — Is your cyclamen looking like a mophead now? It's time to start drying it off for another year's snow. Place the pot in the cellar and gradually withhold water. The leaves will dry up and the fat corm in the soil will remain dormant all summer.

In early fall, repot the "bulb", or you can scrape off the upper inch of soil and replace it with a fresh mixture. Water plant and grow it in a bright window. Do not water during summer months.

OUTDOOR PORCH BOXES: Don't forget to insert some greenery in your porch boxes or planters. Some are better than others. We like pine, spruce, arborvitae and Yew. Avoid hemlock as it sheds too soon.

Question Box

QUESTION OF THE WEEK F. R. of Stroudsburg: "Sometime ago you mentioned a 'Chinese tomato ring' which a gardener uses for growing tomatoes. Will you please tell us what kind of tomatoes are used, do they need pinching and suckering. I'd like to start one of these rings, but can't imagine how he gets so many tomatoes from just 4 plants."

The Chinese Tomato ring we mentioned was an old method of growing a few tomato plants trained to a wire "corset", about five feet high and made of chicken wire. You make a good sized pile of leaves, grass cuttings, etc., as you would a compost.

Surround this with the wire, using stakes to reinforce it. As leaves, peatmoss, clippings, etc. become available, add these to the enclosure until you reach the top.

Four tomato plants are set in at the four points of the circle. Vines are trained to the wire and allowed to climb. Pieces of cloth are used for tying. As the plants grow, the roots grow toward the center of the compost where moisture is always available.

As the pile settles, you can water it from time to time with a liquid plant food. Fruit is clean, free from snail holes.

The vines need no pinching and can be allowed to ramble over the entire pile. If your space is limited, the Chinese tomato ring is ideal. You can use any variety you wish, although we like the Morton hybrid for this purpose.

B. H. of Wind Gap: "I've found that a copper planter can be injurious to foliage plants. It's even possible to kill a small tree by driving copper nails 3" long into base of tree. When we switched to zinc or brass we had no trouble growing plants at all. . .Copper is definitely harmful."

(Green Thumb note: Several have written to tell me that same story. Others say copper has no effect on their philodendrons and other house plants. We've seen copper planters in homes and they seem to support plant life with no trouble.

G. B. of Saylorsburg: "Every year our phlox problem is the same. As soon as the buds appear, the leaves begin to turn brown from the bottom, then the plant dies. What makes this? Is there a disease - free phlox"?

Sounds like you have mildew trouble. Leaves first take on a white cast (telltale sings of mildew) and then browning of foliage sets in. Control: Dust your plants with a good mildew killer such as sulfur, Karathane, or you might try an antibiotic known as Actidione.

The secret is to treat BEFORE the disease sets in because mildew is hard to eradicate.

Golf's Big 3 Return

PHOENIX, Ariz. (AP)—Golf's Big Three was back together again Wednesday as South Africa's Gary Player arrived on the eve of the $50,000 Phoenix Open Tournament.

With Arnold Palmer seeking to win this title a fourth straight year and Jack Nicklaus figuring he should have his own game back in top shape, the three could dominate the event.

Jerry Steelsmith of Glendale, Calif., served notice this may not necessarily be true as he sizzled eight-under-par 63 in the pro-amateur prelude.

He and his pro-am team posted a best-ball 54.

"I've been active in tournaments in South Africa and won the Australian Open," Player said when asked if he'd been resting.

"I didn't have any rest at all," he said. "I've been active all the time."

He won four of the seven tournaments in which he played in his homeland.

Arriving Tuesday night, Player found he was battling time as well as the Phoenix Country Club course.

There is a 10-hour time differential and if he had stayed home he would have been going to bed instead of just starting to play golf in noon sunshine.

Player passed up the California tournaments awaiting the birth of his fourth child at Johannesburg.

"It was a little girl and now we have two girls and two boys," he said.

Last year, Player competed in 22 tournaments on the PGA tour and won $1,000 or more in 21 of them, including a second-place finish at Phoenix. He was just one stroke behind Palmer.

All told, he collected $55,455 in those 22 events.

Archers Plan First Shoot

EAST STROUDSBURG — Plans for the first shoot of the season March 15 were discussed at Tuesday's meeting of the Pocono Archery Assn. in the home of Jay Sleep, East Stroudsburg.

Newly-elected officers presiding over the meeting included George Miller, president; Gene Hippler, vice president; Madlyn Shepps, secretary; Kenneth Stine, treasurer; and Chester Dymond and Richard Phillips, trustees.

It also was announced at the meeting that the annual deer shoot has been scheduled for Sept. 13.

Warrior Cagers Slammed, 84-74

MILLERSVILLE — The Marauders of Millersville broke up a tight battle in the last four minutes to send East Stroudsburg State College down its 10th straight loss, 84-74. It was the eighth Pennsylvania State College Basketball Conference loss against one victory.

Millersville dumped in seven of their last 10 points from the foul line to break up a nip-and-tuck contest in the waning minutes.

East Stroudsburg, with Harvey Branyan and Dick Koch pacing the Warrior's offensive, fought the Marauders to a 41-41 halftime standoff. Branyan and Koch each ripped the nets for 22 points.

But Millersville's Mike Kometa and Frank Oslislo netted 56 points between them with Kometa getting the scoring honors in the game with 31 points on 12 field goals and seven free throws.

Also hitting double figures for the Warriors were Warren Landis with 12 and Dennis Marchalonis with 11.

Millersville hit for 44 per cent from the floor while ESSC connected for only 32 per cent. From the foul line, neither team was sharp — Millersville hitting for 18 of 27, and ESSC for 10 of 24.

Emmaus Topples E-burg Swimmers

EAST STROUDSBURG — Six new school records were broken by East Stroudsburg High School swimmers last night but the performances failed to gain a team victory as visiting Emmaus won, 56-30.

Only two of the record-breaking feats were good enough for first-place finishes. They were Dick Alleger's 1:15.1 time in the 100-yard backstroke, and Jim Wilkens' 1:14.2 finish in the 100-yard breaststroke.

Al Bunn set a new Eastburg record with a 1:21.5 clocking in the 100-yard butterfly event but he only finished third.

Gene Mutchler set a new record of 2:22.9 in the 200-yard freestyle event, and Alleger set another record in the 200-yard individual medley relay with a time of 2:43.8. Both finished second.

Eastburg's 200-yard medley relay team of Tim Uhl, Jim Wilkens, Arleigh Wolbert and Wes Allen set a new school record with a time of 2:03.4 but still finished second to Emmaus.

Navy Players Praise Texans

ANNAPOLIS, Md. (AP — Opposing players making the biggest impression on Navy's football team last fall were Texas tackle Scott Appleton and Army quarterback Rollie Stichweh.

Appleton, who led Texas to its 28-6 Cotton Bowl victory over the Middies, and Stichweh, who scored twice in Army's loss to Navy, were named the top lineman and back on the Middies' all-opponent team.

Poodle Wins Blue Ribbon

EAST STROUDSBURG — Marie Antoinette Monterey, C.D., five-year-old miniature poodle owned by Mr. and Mrs. Philip Fleiss of East Stroudsburg, is winner of a blue ribbon gained at Saturday's dog show in New York City.

The poodle won first place with 195½ points of a possible perfect 200 score in the Open A group of competition held in Henry Hudson Hotel.

Million Attend Olympic Games

INNSBRUCK, Austria (AP)—Olympic officials forecast Wednesday that a million spectators will have watched the Winter Games by the time they end on Sunday.

A total of 576,000 fans had turned out for the various sports in the first six days—the halfway mark.

Landry Signs 11-Year Pact

DALLAS (AP)—Tom Landry, coach of the Dallas Cowboys of the National Football League, signed a contract Wednesday giving him 11 more years with the club.

Cowboy officials said they believe it is the longest contract in professional sports.

Money involved was not disclosed, but General Manager Tex Schramm said Landry received a pay hike.

Landry, 39, the only coach the Cowboys have had, held a contract with one more year to go and signed a contract for 10 additional years.

But Russians Still Rake In Medals

Norwegians, Swede Shock Soviets

INNSBRUCK, Austria (AP)—Norway's tireless Knut Johannesen and a pair of young teammates further rocked the Soviet Unions speed skating dynasty with a 1-2-3 sweep in the 5,000 meters and aging Sixten Jernberg of Sweden proved himself king of the long-distance skiers Wednesday in the ninth Winter Olympic Games.

The Russians continued to rake in the medals, however. Claudia Boyarskikh, a 23-year-old schoolteacher, won her second gold and a mate, Alevtina Kochina, grabbed the bronze in the womens 5,000-meter cross-country ski race. This boosted the Soviets total to a staggering 21, eight of them gold, in 24 events.

Fifth Straight

The powerful Russian hockey team also won its fifth straight game, smothering Germany 10-0 and moved closer to its climactic battle Saturday with Canada, also unbeaten in five games after thumping Finland 6-2. Russia is heavily favored.

The United States team continued to disappoint its followers, losing 7-1 to Czechoslovakia. The setback was the fourth against only one victory for the Americans who dropped back into a fifth-place tie with Finland.

Alarm swept the toboggan and bobsled area at Igls, where an American sled flew off the track in the two-man toboggan finals and cracking, melting ice provoked heated protests from the bobsledders.

Strong Lead

A Canadian crew, piloted by Victor Emery, forged into a surprisingly strong lead over Italy's eight-time world champion, Eugenio Monti, in the first two of four runs for the four-man bobsleds.

But Emery complained bitterly about cracks in the ice, particularly around the treacherous Witchs Cauldron curve, and said: "All of us took a chance making that second run."

Members of the Austrian army were dispatched immediately to try to patch up the bobsled run. Officials, meanwhile, promised that if the track were not in proper condition for the final two runs Thursday and Friday, the medals would be awarded on the basis of the two runs made

No Complaints

There were no complaints from the American sledders — one of them piloted by Bill Hickey of Keene, N. Y., into fifth place and other by Larry McKillip of Saranac Lake, N. Y., into seventh.

On the first of two scheduled runs, a U.S. sled with Ron Walters of Garden Grove, Calif., as steersman and Jim Higgins of San Gabriel, Calif., at his back, was zooming down the toboggan track at breakneck speed when it hit the notorious Olympia curve.

The sled flew off the track, spilling its occupants on the hard ice. Higgins lay on the ground several minutes, as if seriously hurt. Finally, he got up and, with Walters, hobbled back to the camp.

Feared Broken Back

"I thought my back was broken, Higgins said.

Jernberg, an indefatigable veteran of three olympics who will be 35 Thursday, sped through the trees and over the hills at Seefeld to win the 50-kilometer — 31 miles and 120 yards cross-country ski — in 2 hours 43 minutes, 52.6 seconds. He gulped blueberry water for strength as he raced.

Jernberg, winning his eighth Olympic medal dating back to the 1956 games at Cortina, quickly overtook the double medalist from Finland, Eeron Maentyranta, and then skied away from the defending titleholder, Finn Kalevai Haemaelaeinen, to score by 1 minute, 5.6 seconds.

Swede Second

Assar Roennlund of Sweden was second in 2:44:50.2 and Arto Tiainen of Finland third in 2:45:30.4. Maentyranta finished ninth, Haemaelaeinen out of the running.

Johannesen, a 30-year-old Oslo salesman, won the 5,000-meter speed skating test in 7 minutes, 38.4 seconds, followed by a 19-year-old teammate, Per Ivar Moe, and Fred Anton Maier, a 25-year-old Norwegian clerk. All bettered the Olympic record of 7:48.7 set by Boris Shilkov of the Soviet Union at Cortina in 1956.

Beat Ex-Champ

They also beat the Soviet defending champion, Viktor Kosichkin, who finished fourth in 7:45.8. It marked the second time in as many days that the Russians had taken a beating in what had become their virtual monopoly.

The United States had no entries in the womens 5,000-meter ski race, in which Miss Boyerskikh beat out Mirja Lehtegnen, a Finnish farmers daughter, by 2.4 seconds, with Miss Kochina third. The winning time was 17 minutes, 50.5 seconds.

Wins Tobogganing

Austrias Josef Feistmantl and Manfred Stengl won the two-man tobogganing with a clocking of 1 minute, 41.62 seconds for two runs down the dangerous Igls chute. Austria also won the silver with Italy taking the bronze for third.

The showing of Vic Emerys Canadian crew was a big surprise in the four-man bobs.

The Canadians clocked 2 minutes, 6.81 seconds for two runs down the 1,501-yard bobsled track. The 34-year-old Monti, the famed mountain man, was second with Austria's Erwin Thaler third in 2:07.61.

Roman Brother Stakes Winner

MIAMI, Fla. (AP) — Roman Brother, one of the early Kentucky Derby favorites, got a masterful ride from Manuel Yeaza, survived a rough journey and won the 30th and richest running of the Bahamas Stake at Hialeah Park Wednesday.

Mr. Brick, under Walter Blum, finished second but was disqualified and placed fourth in the field of 13 derby-age colts. That moved Journalist up to second and Bupers to third.

Top Weight

Roman Brother, 9 to 5 favorite with the crowd of 18,214, ran the seven furlongs in 1:23.2 and paid $5.60, $3.60 and $2.60. Journalist returned $7.80 and $5 while Bupers was $4 to show.

Roman Brother shared top weight of 123 pounds with Mr. Brick and Bupers, the latter under Bill Hartack. Journalist had Wayne Chambers to make up most of his 120 pounds.

Delirium took the lead and held it for the first quarter mile with Mr. Brick and Bupers alongside. Roman Brother was back with the pack until they made the far turn and moved into third before they reached the stretch.

Even the jockeys couldn't agree on what occurred in the furious drive to the wire.

"Ran Straight"

"My horse ran straight all the way," Yeaza said. "What happened was Blum's horse (Mr. Brick) came out and carried Bupers out into my path and made it look as if my horse was crossing over when actually he ran true. I didn't even have to wave the whip at him left-handed which I could have easily done."

Blum said, "Hartack's horse was under a full head of steam when Roman Brother crossed over in his path and forced him to run up on my heels. My horse and Bupers both ran true and shouldn't be involved."

Not Surprissed

Hartack said, "We were moving good when it happened. It isn't the first time and didn't surprise me any."

Chambers said Journalist broke into the side of the gate at the start. "He is a big colt and didn't generate in the mud as well as he can," the jockey added.

Stewards examined films of the race for 15 minutes before announcing their decision which gave Harbor View Farm top money of $22,425 for the victory by Roman Brother.

Roman Brother, owned by Lou Wolfson of Miami Beach, won four times and finished second twice last year in six starts and earned $228,333. He was third in his only start this year and thus has never been out of the money in eight races.

Yanks Sign Kubek With Small Raise

NEW YORK (UPI) The New York Yankees completed the signing of three-fourths of the American League's best infield Wednesday when shortstop Tony Kubek became the 16th Yankee to come to terms.

Kubek said in a telephone interview from his home in Wausau, Wis. that he was "very satisfied" with his eighth Yankee contract which givs him a "token" raise in pay over his 1963 salary to an estimated $38,000. The Yanks had previously signed first baseman Joe Pepitone and second sacker Bobby Richardson. Only Clete Boyer remains unsigned in the New York infield, which Tony called "without a doubt the best in the American League."

Slow Start

Kubek, who has played every position for the Yankees except pitcher and catcher, was hoping for a better start than he got last year. Characteristically, a good early season batter, Tony was hitting only .194 on June 24th. From the last week in June on, he hit .292 to finish the year at .257. He explained, "maybe I was a little overweight last spring and that caused the slow start."

Concerning his new manager, Kubek said he was "surprised Berra was appointed as soon as he was.

"I thought it would happen eventually but I thought Ralph would stay on as manager awhile longer," he went on. "I'm happy for both."

U. S. Students Sent To Jail

INNSBRUCK, Austria (AP)—Two American students were in jail Wednesday after taking a Tyrolean flag from its staff as a souvenir of the Winter Olympics.

A spokesman for Innsbruck police headquarters said, "Unfortunately they will have to be kept in jail until their trial because flag-snatching must be reguarded as theft."

The spokesman declined to disclose the names of the students.

WILSON BOROUGH — The Warriorettes of Wilson Borough yesterday staved off a final-period bid by visiting Pen Argyl to gain a 27-23 victory in a girls basketball game of the Lehigh-Northampton League.

The winners held a 16-10 halftime advantage and entered the final stanza with a 23-13 lead but Pen Argyl outscored Wilson by a 10-4 margin in the fourth quarter.

Barbara Flagg's nine points for Wilson was high in the game. Pam Parsons led the losers with eight points.

Your Horoscope

By FRANCIS DRAKE

March 21 to April 20 (Aries) — You can do a better job of attaining today than you may think. All situations and problems need not be as difficult as seen on surface; keep plunging.

April 21 to May 21 (Taurus) — Don't anticipate failure, neither look for sudden success. A conscientious program will help you surmount annoyances, irksome tasks. You may gain by that one more try.

May 22 to June 21 (Gemeni)—Especially favored now: outdoor pursuits, transportation, the ministry, agriculture, engineering, reconstruction, bargaining. But a steady hand and head are needed.

June 22 to July 23 (Cancer) — Planetary influences stimulate intellectual pursuits, eagerness and carefully directed ambitions. If impulsive or hurried, day won't please. Think constructively to avoid errors.

July 24 to August 23 (Leo) — Born before July 30: take more care in the romance and domestic departments. All Leoites: put fact before talk, and walk before you run if you would stay out of traps, detours.

August 24 tl September 23 (Virgo) — Good Mercury influences. Accomplished as much as you can while time and opportunity are here. You will be sad later. Don't mind obstacles: they are normal tests and improve ability.

September 24 to October 23 (Libra) — Accent the basic formula — facts, the further learning that must be acquired for right solutions. No matter your position, you CAN go UP, and there are smart maneuvers to begin NOW.

October 24 to November 22 (Scorpio) — This should be a day for stepping back to view your projects and methods with an eye toward revitalizing, even if only in small part. Remain poised, undismayed, ready for bigger and better opportunities.

November 23 to December 21 (Sagittarius) — Negative factors need not disturb if you kep situations in hand and study the whys and solving measures as you go along. Do not let things go till the last minute.

December 22 to January 20 (Capricorn) — Especially favored now: educational pursuits, travel, study methods, enlightened environment. Achievement is possible in out-of-the-ordinary ways and places.

January 21 to February 19 (Aquarius) — Through cooperation with right sources and sticking firmly by duties, you should enjoy better - than-everyday credits. Understanding, better deals, bargains shape up.

February 20 o March 20 (Pisces) — Not much planetary help here, but through your own efforts you can have a satisfactory day. Study conditions, be sensibly philosophical, and know that there are many advantages for the searching.

YOU BORN TODAY are widely talented, roundly capable in an emergency; make fine nurses and doctors. You are naturally jovial, ready for good fun, sports, gaining knowledge in new fields, but often stay in a "rut" through lack of aggressive tactics. But your mind and abilities are appreciated in the long run by more than a few. This Sign has more than the usual quota of doctors, reformers, scientists, literati, humanitarians. Birthdate of: Aaron Burr, American Statesman; Sir Henry Irving, dramatist.

HERE is a pleasant little game that will give you a message every day. It is a numerical puzzle designed to spell out your fortune. Count the letters in your first name. If the number of letters is 6 or more, subtract 4. If the number is less than 6, add 3. The result is your key number. Start at the upper left-hand corner of the rectangle and check every one of your key numbers left to right. Then read the message the letters under the checked figures give you.

Program Aimed At Youth

Kiwanis To Probe Job Opportunities

STROUDSBURG — A plan to expose area high school students to area job opportunities has been formed by the Vocational Guidance Committee of the Stroudsburg Kiwanis Club.

"I don't think this has ever been done as completely as we plan to do it, Ralph E. Bender, committee chairman, said after the plan was formed at the Kiwanis meeting in the Penn-Stroud Hotel yesterday.

High school students who do not plan to go on to college are the targets for the guidance program. According to Bender, people in varied professions would work with small groups of students — three or four at the most — and give them both pros and cons of the professions.

"To give you an example of what can be done, Bender said, "I spoke to a group of girls in one local high school who wanted to become models. I found a former model living in East Stroudsburg and brought her to the school to speak with the girls.

"When she finished her talk on modeling, every single girl had changed her mind."

"True Picture"

Bender stressed that "we do not want to push the students, we want to give them a true picture of various professions and let them make their own decisions.

He said that it is the feeling of the committee that people who work in the area where they were born usually "fit in" better.

"I spoke to the Employment Agency in Stroudsburg to find out the nature of the jobs available in the Poconos and immediate vicinity," Bender said. "We are just beginning this program, and we are still trying to discern the problems, let alone start the guidance.

"It has always been disturbing to me that we do not take care of people with average—and good — IQs who do not go to college," the former educator said.

"Instead of speakers, it is our idea to have people in trades actually sit down and describe jobs and opportunities for our young people.

Bender said that the program will be supplemental to the guidance programs in the schools, and will be up to the schools to accept or reject.

With Bender on the committee are Gilbert L. Smrz of Line-Material, M. Stiles (Marty) Baldwin of Olympic-Keiper, Dr. John Wildrick of East Stroudsburg State College, and Alfred Munson, principal of Stroud Union High School.

Bender said no definite plans for starting the program had been made as yet.

Teachers Eligible For Grants

NEWFOUNDLAND — Teachers in the new Wallenpaupack Area Joint Junior - Senior High School, which opened yesterday on the shores of Lake Wallenpaupack, will be eligible for educational grants totaling $1,000 a year under a new academic fellowship program set up by Pennsylvania Power and Light Company.

The funds represent the full amount of the annual rental PP&L receives for the use of the land on which the district's new school is built.

In discussing the fellowship, Jack K. Busby, PP&L president, noted that the program is designed to help teachers in the district take additional courses in order to increase their knowledge and teaching capabilities.

"To qualify for a fellowship, he said, an applicant must hold a permanent teaching certificate and have successfully completed three or more years of service in the education field. The courses which the teacher intends to take must be related to present or anticipated assignments as a teacher, supervisor or administrator within the Wallenpaupack School District. The applicant need not be working toward an advanced degree, however.

A fellowship committee, comprising three members of recognized standing in the field of education, will examine all applications and select the grantees. Members of the committee are Ralph C. Geigle, superintendent of Schools, Reading; Dr. John A. Stoops, head of the Department of Education, Lehigh University; and Dr. John W. Moore, chairman of education, Bucknell University.

The number of fellowships awarded each year can vary since budget requirements are expected to differ with each recipient. Their total value, however, will not exceed $1,000 unless unused funds are carried over from the previous year.

The fellowship program is the newest of PP&L's aid-to-education programs. One program, begun in 1947, provides 15 scholarships annually to high school students in the company's service area. Another is a tuition refund program for employees who wish to continue their education. The company also matches employee contributions to colleges, and aids the Foundation for Independent Colleges in Pennsylvania.

Located in Pike

The new Wallenpaupack School is located in Pike County about three miles from Hawley, almost in the center of the nine school districts which it serves. They are Blooming Grove, Dreher, Greene, Hawley, Palmyra - Pike Palmyra-Wayne, Paupack, Lackawaxen and White Mills.

It is one of a number of all-electric schools being built or already completed in the PP&L service area, and is the first of its kind in the Poconos.

Vet Depot Employe Retires

TOBYHANNA — A much-honored U.S. Civil Service worker retired this week at the Tobyhanna Army Depot. He is 71-year-old Melvin Ault of Tobyhanna Vilage, who picked up an aditional citation just before leaving.

The Certificate of Achievement commends him "for consistently displaying foresight, initiative and persistence in the field of packaging documentation."

The citation continues: "Largely through his efforts, a packaging data sheet achieving uniformity in engineering practices, was devised. His attitude and wilingness to help others by passing on to them his technical knowledge and experience made him a definite asset to the Standardization Division of the Suply and Maintenance Command Packaging and Storage Center and the United States Army."

Ault also received several awards for sustained superior performance during his Government career, which began in 1942 with the Ordinance Corps in Madison, Wisc.

Subsequent jobs tok him to Washington, D. C. and Toledo, Ohio.

Before entering Federal service, Ault served as manager of woodworking factories in Mississipi and Michigan.

At 71 he is one of the oldest employees to retire at the Tobyhanna depot. The Federal compulsory retirement age is 70, but Ault received a one-year extension last year to continue work on a special project.

He doesn't yet feel ready to retire. "I may look for another job," he said yesterday.

Before he does, however, he plans a Florida vacation and visits with his five married children and 21 grandchildren.
